Enhancing Response to Victims

KEYNOTE PRESENTERS

APRIL 21 KEYNOTE SESSION:

Pursuing Restitution & Justice for Child Pornography Victims:

Paul Cassell & James Marsh

In 2014, a case on compensation for victims of child pornography in federal criminal restitution proceedings was decided by the Supreme Court. The Case, United States v. Paroline, addressed how restitution for victims of child pornography should be awarded. The plenary will address awarding restitution for victims of child pornography; exploring legal issues affecting children and victims of sex abuse and exploitation; and helping sexual abuse victims obtain justice and rebuild their lives with dignity and respect.

Lessons From The D.C. Sniper Case

Chief John King, Provo City Police Department

In October 2002, the Washington D.C. area was terrorized by a sniper who killed 10 people and wounded others during a three week rampage. Chief King will share insight from his participation in the case on the response by the system to bring the perpetrator to justice—what worked and what didn't—in this complex and terrifying case.

APRIL 22 PLENARY SESSIONS:

Statute of Limitations on Child Sexual Assault

DeAnn Tilton

This presentation will focus on the civil and criminal statutes of limitation (SOL) for childhood sexual abuse. Historically, SOL in Utah have been far too short, silencing victims and protecting abusers.

Kidnapped & Held Hostage in Africa

K. Shawn Bischoff: Jet Blue Pilot, Fort Lauderdale Florida; Kenneth Bischoff: Father of Kidnapped Victim

Todd Thompson, Special Agent, FBI; John D. Wright, Supervisory Special Agent, (FBI)

K. Shawn Bischoff, a pilot from Fort Lauderdale, FL traveled to Africa to conclude a commercial transaction with individuals who had solicited him on the internet. Bischoff flew into Lome, across the border from Benin in Togo where he was met by a group of men. The police say the party crossed the border into Benin, where the abductors took Bischoff and disappeared into thin air. He was held hostage for eight days and threats were made against him. Bischoff's captors demanded ransom from his parents who live in Ogden, Utah. This presentation highlights the collaborative efforts engaged in by Bischoff's family and the FBI to secure his safe release and to bring him home.

Breakout Sessions

Justice Reinvestment Initiative (JRI):

Based on analysis of state corrections and criminal justice data, the Utah Commission on Criminal & Juvenile Justice (CCJJ) developed a comprehensive set of evidence-based policy recommendations to reduce recidivism, hold offenders accountable, and control the state's prison growth. These recommendations are projected to reduce prison growth by 2,551 inmates over the next 20 years and would avert $542 million in corrections spending. CCJJ recommends reinvesting a portion of these savings into programs and practices proven to reduce recidivism and cut crime. A panel will discuss the implementation of the Justice Reinvestment Initiative.

(Doug Fawson, Victim Services Coordinator, Utah Dept. of Corrections; Rep. Eric K. Hutchings, Utah State Legislature; Jennifer Valencia, Director, Utah Sentencing Commission; Jeff R. Buhman, Utah County Attorney's Office; Judge James R. Taylor, Fourth District Court)

Sovereignty, Justice, and Truth: The Journey of A Native American Woman Who Is Sexually Assaulted

This presentation will address the healing and secondary trauma of a native woman's experience after being sexually assaulted. It will also discuss the secondary trauma and impact of the criminal justice and medical systems, and advocacy has on sexually assaulted native women. With the intended goal of assisting others to learn cultural sensitivity, and cultural differences when working with Native women.

(Toni Plummer-Alvernaz)

Trauma Informed Victim Interviews: What We've Learned So Far

In May 2014, West Valley City Police Department and the Utah Prosecution Council created and implemented a new protocol for victim interviews incorporating the principles of the neurobiology of trauma. This presentation will focus on what we've learned so far, including video clips from real sexual assault interviews.

(Donna Kelly, Utah Prosecution Council & Justin Boardman, Detective, West Valley City Police Department)

Working With Victims in Cold Case Rapes:

As criminal justice communities continue to address the backlog of untested sexual assault evidence kits, many unique issues arise. This workshop will discuss the history of these backlogs, the process of managing and investigating these old case, and most importantly will look at working with victims of these old cases.

(Detective Sgt. James Markey, Detective (Retired) M.Ed.)

Improving Services to Victims of Crime: Law Enforcement Perspective

Investigating sex related offenses is complex and requires multi-resources. Research has shown that communities that respond as Multi-Disciplinary Team (MDT) see improved response and results as well as providing better assistance to the victims. Understanding the development, structure, and functions of this team are essential components to success. Law enforcements position in this team can be seen as a vital role in its achievements. Attendees to this workshop will be exposed to the best practices of a MDT and the challenges. A look at the advocacy center approach in improving response to victims of violence and law enforcement can improve their response.

(Detective Sgt. James Markey (Retired) M.Ed.)

Screening, Filing, and Successfully Prosecuting Cold Case Homicides

Cold cases are unsolved homicides for which investigative leads have dwindled or otherwise gone "cold." Offenders shouldn't rest easy because homicide investigators don't give up and the advances in forensic technology may yield new leads. News headlines reflect the renewed focus, advances and successes in cold case homicides. This workshop provides current information on how to screen, file, and successfully prosecute cold case homicides.

(Vincent Meister, Deputy District Attorney, Salt Lake County District Attorney's Office; Sgt. Todd Park, Violent Crimes Supervisor, Unified Police Department)

The Cost of Sexual Violence in Utah:

The Costs of Sexual Violence in Utah is compiled data illustrating the economic burden of sexual violence. The report reveals the startling findings of the economic costs resulting from sexual violence and the greater cost caused by the pain, suffering, and diminished quality of life that victims experience.

(Teresa Brechlin, BS)

The Pornography Crime Connection:

The 2016 Utah Legislature declared the use of pornography to be a public health crisis. This session will explore pornography's connection to crime and the effect on victims and how the criminal justice system should respond.
